Clackamas County Farm Bureau offers scholarships

Clackamas County Farm Bureau supports an informed and educated agricultural industry. In 2012, the Farm Bureau will offer about $15,000 in agricultural scholarships.

A number of scholarships ranging between $1,000 and $3,000 per recipient will be awarded to students pursuing a two- or four-year college degree in agriculture or a related field. The scholarships are available to any Clackamas County high school graduate, resident, or prior scholarship recipient.

The application deadline is March 1, 2012.

“If Oregon wishes to continue to be a world-class supplier of food and other agricultural crops, we need to continuously support higher education and research opportunities for the next generation of farmers and ranchers,” said Tom Winterrowd, scholarship committee chairman of Clackamas County Farm Bureau.

For the scholarship application, visit the Oregon Farm Bureau website at oregonfb.org (located under “Programs” menu) or contact Tom Winterrowd at (503) 263-2696.
