

What Farm Bureau does for you

Whatever kind of farm or ranch you have, public policy is part of your life. From water to roads, taxes to trade, EPA to ODA, nearly every area of law and regulation impacts your business. Farm Bureau was founded by farmers and ranchers nearly 100 years ago with this simple notion: We have a stronger voice when we speak together. Joining with 7,000 member farm and ranch families across Oregon, there is no more effective way to amplify your voice in the legislative arena than Farm Bureau.

Since its 1919 origins in Oregon, Farm Bureau's issue positions are created and approved by family farmers and ranchers. These members live and work in all 36 Oregon counties, produce every one of Oregon's 220+ ag products, and represent all sizes and types of production. What and how you farm is up to you. If your livelihood depends on agriculture, you are welcome to join and participate.

Farm Bureau is based at the county level. Your membership and voice start there. Beyond Oregon, you also are part of the nearly 6-million-member-strong American Farm Bureau, the world's largest, most esteemed "agvoacy" organization.

Beyond public policy

You can easily recoup the cost of annual dues — and enjoy many more savings — through Farm Bureau's members-only discount programs.

Get $500 Bonus Cash on a new or leased GM, Chevy, or Buick; save up to $2,000 on new Caterpillar machines; get $200-$300 off Polaris off-road vehicles; receive $300-$500 off certain Case-IH tractors or implements; and save up to 50% on Grainger purchases. Eligible farmers and ranchers can get a substantial Verizon discount for business lines. Also find savings on propane, prescription medications, hotel stays, rental cars, and more. Farm Bureau members are eligible for COUNTRY Financial insurance and other services.

Members with farm stands, u-pick fields, on-farm festivals, CSAs, etc. can be included in OFB's renowned Oregon's Bounty guide and website, the state's most comprehensive listing of direct-market ag ventures open to the public.

Stay informed

As a Voting or Supporting Farm Bureau member, you will receive six issues of the award-winning printed OFB Newsletter, an OFB Annual Report, a copy of Oregon's Bounty magazine, and the award-winning Oregon's Bounty calendar.

"Farm Bureau is a grass-roots, county-based organization. Farms and ranches of all sizes, commodities, and production methods have an opportunity to bring their issues forward and have their voices heard."

Barry Bushue, OFB President

Join Oregon agriculture's best grassroots network

Farm Bureau is a true grassroots organization, with family farmers and ranchers guiding OFB's work in the legislative arena. Voting members can engage in their county Farm Bureau, present their individual concerns — and work with Farm Bureau to get something done.

Through your county and state Farm Bureau, you will also have access to ag industry experts, issue forums, leadership development opportunities, and ways to educate the public about agriculture. See the enclosed county meeting schedule, and find your county Farm Bureau president contact at oregonfb.org or contact OFB at 800.334.6323, tiffany@oregonfb.org.

"Things we take for granted are there because of Farm Bureau: the farm use assessment, the F-plate, favorable truck regulations, higher estate tax exemptions, and many more. Achieving these laws is one thing, defending them from constant attack is another. Farm Bureau does both."

Peggy Browne
Baker County farmer & rancher

At the OFB Annual Meeting in December, hundreds of members meet to determine Farm Bureau's political goals, vote on officer positions, receive state and federal issue updates, and enjoy the company of fellow farmers and ranchers.

Whatever your level of involvement, your membership in Farm Bureau helps get the results farm and ranch families rely on.

Types of membership

Voting Farm Bureau members must generate at least $2,500 in gross income from farming or ranching activities. Voting members can participate in their county Farm Bureau, attend meetings, serve on committees, and vote on policies that guide OFB's priorities and work.

Supporting members are those who are not farmers, but who support family agriculture in Oregon. Lenders, equipment repair or sales operations, and others who depend on ag producers in their businesses can join as Supporting members and have access to all Farm Bureau benefits.

Your money doesn't go as far on the farm or in town these days, but for only about $10 a month, you can become part of the strongest voice in agriculture. If you use nearly any discount program, your true cost is far less. After they join, many members repeat the old refrain, "Farm Bureau membership doesn't cost. It pays."

Recent OFB accomplishments

OFB's primary objective is to advocate for public policy that protects and supports family farmers and ranchers. Following are some recent Farm Bureau accomplishments:

- Standing with the Hammonds: OFB led the #SaveTheHammonds campaign to bring to light gross injustice by the federal government on an Eastern Oregon ranching family. The BLM and the U.S. Dept. of Justice prosecuted Dwight and Steven Hammond under terrorist statutes for setting preventative backfires on their own land, even though the ranchers had already served time and paid their debt to society for mistakes made. OFB's effort generated over 7,600 signatures from 48 states on a petition in support of the Hammonds, and also gained coverage of the story in state and national media.
- Farm Bureau played a key role in avoiding an ESA listing for the sage grouse, and getting the gray wolf delisted at the state level.
- OFB successfully fought a bill to eliminate your personal property tax exemptions on equipment, crops, livestock, and more.
- OFB was essential in the passage of a 15% tax credit for farmers donating crops to food banks.
- OFB worked hard to pass legislation that prevents a patchwork of differing laws for agriculture across Oregon.
- OFB successfully advocated to further protect farm ground from aggregate mining.
- OFB pushed for legislation that retains your right to replace "bad" dwellings on your property.
- Farm Bureau continues to lead the fight to stop the EPA's efforts to regulate all water on private land with our #DitchTheRule campaign.

Farm Bureau programs

Learn more about each program at oregonfb.org or call 800.334.6323.

YF&R: Young Farmers & Ranchers is a group within Farm Bureau specifically for agriculture producers between the ages of 16 and 35. YF&R gives members the tools to become effective "advocates" for agriculture, and many opportunities for travel, leadership development, networking, and fun!

Scholarships: At the state and county level, Farm Bureau awards over $65,000 worth of scholarships to Oregon students every year.

FEELDS: The Farm Employer Education & Legal Defense Service helps Farm Bureau members keep up with ever-changing state and federal regulations. FEELDS identifies its clients' business strengths and areas that need extra attention, and provides guidance on managing employment situations.

Health & Safety, Ag Education & Women's Advisory Council: These volunteer-led committees focus on outreach and education to farmers, ranchers, and the general public, as well as provide workshops for Farm Bureau members.

Century Farm & Ranch: The Oregon Farm Bureau Foundation for Education's Century Farm & Ranch program is one of the oldest agricultural heritage recognitions in the nation. It honors farms and ranches that have remained operational and within the same family for at least 100 years. A Sesquicentennial status is available for those that have reached the 150-year mark.

Summer Ag Institute: An Oregon Farm Bureau Foundation for Education program, SAI is a graduate-level class through Oregon State University that educates K-12 teachers about agriculture. The goal is to help educators use agriculture as a context for teaching standard subjects like science, math, social studies, and English. Since its first summer in 1989, SAI has enrolled 1,300 teachers, impacting 30,000 students and promoting the importance of agriculture to society.

Rural development: Farm Bureau's work to support Oregon's rural communities includes workshops designed to help landowners expand their businesses, and regional ag issue forums that bring together local stakeholders for updates, networking, and action plans.

Ag tours: Farm Bureau offers regional agriculture tours for members, and also for lawmakers to help them better understand the issues facing farm and ranch families.

"When legislators tried to bring back the personal property tax on Oregon's family farms and ranches, Farm Bureau was there to stop them. Without that win, we'd be paying more taxes and dealing with more paperwork."

Jon Iverson, Clackamas County diversified farmer

"Water quality regulations and water supply are enormous challenges for family agriculture. Nobody understands these issues better and is more effective at getting good results than Farm Bureau."

Phil Hassinger, Union County farmer

"Farm Bureau and its foundation provide over $60,000 a year in college scholarships, run two graduate programs with OSU to teach teachers about agriculture, and recognize Oregon's century and 150-year-old farms and ranches."

Holly Michaels, Douglas County rancher

Locally grown & growing strong

Farm Bureau's strength comes from farmers and ranchers working together toward a common goal: to protect and promote Oregon agriculture. This unity is what makes Farm Bureau a family. There's nothing like the relationships you gain in Farm Bureau, friendships with people who care deeply about their crops, animals, land, and lifestyle. Whether you join to be part of the strongest voice in agriculture, or to save money in your operation, we believe your life will be enriched in countless other ways by this great family of producers.

"Farm Bureau gets a lot done for me in Salem and D.C., but it also helps me fight back at the local level when bad decisions threaten farm and ranch families."

Jeff Thomas
Grant County orchardist

"Farm Bureau is a great way to meet other young farmers for networking, leadership training, travel opportunities, and fun. You feel like you're really making a difference for the future of Oregon agriculture."

Kathy Hadley
Polk County farmer & rancher

"Farm Bureau is like a family. Members have similar interests and ways of life. Although I raise cattle, I can relate to a hazelnut grower who has just survived a blight in his orchard or is facing a new regulation."

Dan Andersen
Malheur County farmer & rancher

YF&R: Networking, farming, fun

YF&R — Young Farmers & Ranchers — is a group within Farm Bureau specifically for agriculture producers between the ages of 16 and 35.

Why join?

Sharpen your skills: Oregon's YF&R offers trainings and workshops that address the interests of young farmers.

Recent topics include: The Business of Farming, Strategies for Transferring a Farm to the Next Generation, Media Advocacy, and Protecting Ag from Overregulation.

Network: Meet other young farmers and ranchers from around Oregon and the U.S. Get ideas for your farm, gain contacts, and learn about new ag resources. You'll also make valuable professional contacts — and will meet and work with elected officials on issues that directly impact Oregon agriculture.

Protect & promote agriculture: Learn how public policy impacts Oregon agriculture, from land use to labor laws — and find out how you can make a difference. If farmers don't stand up for agriculture in the legislature, no one will.

Put your communication and farm management skills to the test through YF&R's three competitions: the Discussion Meet, Achievement Award, and Excellence in Agriculture.

Travel: Get the chance to attend conferences, workshops, and ag tours across the state from Portland to Klamath Falls, Newport to Ontario. Or travel with YF&R across the country. Recent events brought members to Washington D.C., Nashville, and Orlando.

Have fun! From ski trips to barbecues, YF&R members have a lot of fun. Build true friendships with people who have similar interests, have adventures in Oregon and beyond, and share some laughs. Now what's better than that?

Where to start: Become a Voting or Supporting Farm Bureau member. Get the application in this packet, at oregonfb.org, or request one at 503.399.1701. Then contact Dennis Myhrum about getting involved in YF&R: dennis@oregonfb.org.
